Antitrust Modernization Commission Releases Commission Timetable.

March 31, 2005 – The Antitrust Modernization Commission has released a projected timetable for the remaining two years of its work, culminating in the issuance of its report to Congress and the President in April 2007. The Commission has begun studying the issues it selected and will be requesting public comment on issues over the next several weeks. The Commission will also begin to schedule hearings for this Summer and Fall. Both requests for comment and notices of hearings will be published in the Federal Register and on the Commission's website, www.amc.gov, which is regularly updated with new Commission documents and other material including, most recently, a list of which Commissioners are participating in each study group.
